

I have been a satellite radio subscriber for about 3 years now and find the programming to be leaps and bounds above the local FM broadcasts. The vast selection available to me and the coast to coast reception is what attracted me to the satellite in the first place. With the addition of the instant traffic and weather stations, I can now find out what is happening instantly in the cities I travel to. This information is also available on the local stations, but it is difficult to catch at a time that is useful. On the satellite, the information is always there when I need it. The local stations should concentrate their efforts on improving their programming offerings instead of trying to stifle my ability to choose what I listen to. At times I do still tune to local radio for some local news and shows, but primarily the satellite is my avenue of choice. This country is all about choice and the ability to make them on our own, I ask that you put an end to the NAB litigation and tend to their own wagons and not to worry about what is in mine.
